New Strike Halts Dayton Air Corps Job

AFL TIES UP BUILDING AT WRIGHT FIELD

War Department Claims Move Hits 'Key Point' of Defense Program.

FOLLOWS TIFF WITH CIO

Dayton Labor Official Calls Men Off Jobs When CIO Workers Return.

(By Associated Press)

DAYTON—Col. Lester B. Miller, commandant at Wright Field, said that a new strike of AFL building trades' union members today had halted $5,900,000 in building construction at this key center in the army's air corps expansion program.

Colonel Miller said that about 200 craftsmen left work in the second general strike at the field in six weeks.

The war department in Washington stated that the strike halted work "essential to the expansion of this post as one of the most important military aircraft centers in the United States."

Col. Miller reported the strike followed the resumption of electrical installation work by CIO union members employed by the Penner corporation.

John Breidenbach, president of the Dayton Central Labor Union, (AFL), called the strike, but he was out of the city and not available for a statement. Neither were officials of the Penner company, which had been ordered by the war department to resume work.

The first strike late in January ended when the Penner firm withdrew its men from the job.

"Construction work, totaling approximately $5,900,000," the department said in a statement, "is now under way at Wright Field to provide testing and laboratory facilities that are needed at once by the army and air corps both for the testing of engines and planes now on order and for the development of new types.

"The AFL strike has halted construction of the wind tunnel, the torque stand, the aircraft radio laboratory, the administration building and the dynamome-

Balkan Break Nears As Bulgaria Joins Axis Powers

World attention once again is riveted on the Balkans (1) following Germany's latest move in adding Bulgaria to the Axis lineup. Turkey, ally of Great Britain, posted warships on both sides of the Dardanelles-Bosporus straits as other ships steamed out of Istanbul (6) to take up night-and-day patrol of the Mediterranean and Black sea entrances to the straits. Turkish troops (2) were being concentrated throughout the region of the Dardanelles. In Sofia (4), the capital of Bulgaria, Britain's minister, George Rendel, had an audience with King Boris (3), informing him that Britain's next move would be war with his country. Yugoslavia, caught in the Nazi pincers, was expected to join the Axis following conferences between Prince Paul (5), nominal ruler of the country for the boy King Peter, and the German minister to Belgrade, Viktor von Heeren. In London, Nicholas Montchiloff, Bulgarian minister, resigned in protest to the Bulgarian capitulation to Adolf Hitler. Bulgaria is the eleventh European state to lose its independence since early 1938.

TRAIN PILOTS FROM 4 STATES AT PORT HERE

Federal Government Chooses Mansfield Airport For New Flight Program.

STARTS IN FEW WEEKS

Non-College Training Students To Receive Instructions In Advanced Flying.

Mansfield today had been selected by the federal government as the site for training students enrolled in the non-college civil pilot training program in four states. They will be given instruction in advanced flying here.

The first instruction center of this type to be established in the nation, training classes will get under way within the next month, James R. Harrington, airport manager and government instructor, said.

The decision to establish the school for advanced flying here marks Mansfield as one of the major cogs in the nation's defense program including the training of civilian pilots.

Because of its geographical location, combined with the fact that it has less traffic than some of the larger ports on commercial airlines, establishes municipal airport as one of the important flying fields in the state.

Harrington said he was notified by telephone from Chicago last night by Civil Aeronautics administration officials that the port had been chosen for training graduate pilots from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan.

A group of 10 pilots from this area, including three from Mansfield, will comprise the first class to be started as soon as a new training plane, estimated to cost $7,500, is purchased, Harrington said.

Selected from Mansfield are Robert McClurg and William Hallum, graduate of the civil pilot training program, sponsored by the Mansfield chapter of the National Aeronautical association. A third has not yet been named.

The government has requested that the program get under way immediately but has given

IT'LL WARM UP

Freezing Temperatures To Stay Only Over Night.

Freezing temperatures returned to the Richland county area today, but the weatherman predicted that they would be neither as prolonged nor as severe as the last cold spell.

The forecast said it would be fair and colder tonight, but that it would be fair and warmer tomorrow and Thursday.

Rain turned to snow at midnight last night as the mercury tumbled 34 degrees from a maximum of 51 reported during yesterday's springlike weather. The temperature last night dropped to 17 but at noon today had gone up to 22 degrees.

Snow packed on top of the ice-coated streets and highways today and made driving hazardous, but state, county and city trucks were dumping cinders on the slippery places.

Hitler Sends Special Note To President

Neither Germans Nor Turks Reveal Contents of Message; Cardiff Suffers Incendiary Raid; Bulgarian Break Near.

BULLETIN

ANKARA, Turkey—(AP)—The Turkish cabinet went into session today to consider a special message from Adolf Hitler to President Inonu.

(By Associated Press)

A German mission arrived by air at Ankara, Turkey, today and almost immediately delivered to Turkish President Ismet Inonu what was believed to be a special message from Adolf Hitler.

The German mission, accompanied by Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, met Inonu and Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister, at noon and remained a half hour with them.

Neither the Germans nor the Turks would discuss the meeting.

Speculation about the message ranged from belief it gave assurances that Germany does not intend to attack Turkey to belief it contained concrete promises in order to keep Turkey out of the war.

The Nazi mission, numbering five men, landed at Ankara this morning after having been given special permission by the Turkish government to fly over Turkey. It was understood to have come directly from Berlin.

(Reports in the Balkans yesterday that a Nazi mission would go to Turkey had included German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop as its likely chief. Berlin sources, however, scoffed at the reports of a special mission, saying that Germany has an ambassador in Turkey and a separate delegation was unnecessary.)

Von Papen and representatives of the German embassy welcomed it at the airport but there were no Turkish officials present.

While the Balkan situation grew more tense hourly, Germany's Luftwaffe attacked the port of Cardiff, South Wales, with a five-hour hail of incendiary bombs last night—described by British officials as one of the greatest fire raids of the war—and RAF bombers pounded Cologne in the German Rhineland.

Dispatches from Cardiff said smoking ruins marked a trail of destruction across the city this morning.

The toll of dead and wounded was not immediately estimated. During the night, as wave after wave of Nazi warplanes swept the city with fire-bombs and high explosives, the American Red Cross rushed ambulances from London, 160 miles away.

Authoritative quarters in London said today Britain might break off relations with Bulgaria "within the next 24 hours"—with the action presumably to be followed by a declaration of war.

A high neutral diplomatic source in Sofia quoted British Minister George W. Rendel as saying he had decided to sever British relations with Bulgaria within 36 hours.

Rendel is said to have full freedom of action concerning the rupture, which may ignite the long-expected Balkan bonfire.

Unconfirmed advices said RAF planes had already been sighted flying high over Bulgaria.

Reports from Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, said the mass movement

CALLS ARREST 'ALL MISTAKE'

Paid German Agent Says He'll Explain to Washington.

OTTAWA, Ill.—(U.P.)—Dr. Friedrich A. Auhagen today described an indictment charging him with failure to register as a paid publicity agent for the German government as "all a mistake" and said he would go to New York and Washington "to explain things."

Auhagen was arrested last night at LaSalle, Ill., on a fugitive warrant issued at Chicago after a federal grand jury at Washington had returned an indictment against him. He was brought to Ottawa for arraignment before the grand jury and then released on bond of $5,000.

'Homecoming' Day Arrives For Mansfield Triplets

Carol Ann, Sara Lou and William Jerome Solomon Home for First Time; Baptized at Rites In Church.

Mansfield's triplets, Carol Ann, Sara Lou and William Jerome Solomon, celebrated their homecoming yesterday afternoon.

They are the daughters and son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll J. Solomon, 431 Edgewood road, who visited their home for the first time since their birth at Mansfield General hospital Jan. 15. The triplets are the first born in Mansfield in 14 years.

The triplets spent a busy day in their young lives for in addition to going home for the first time, they were baptized. The ceremony took place at St. Peter's Catholic church. Father J. G. Dwyer performed the rites.

God-father and god-mother who were named at the ceremony are Mr. and Mrs. Peter Weidner of Loudonville.

The little group was hurried home after the ceremony and were installed in their new quarters just 45 minutes after they left the hospital at 2 p. m. A nurse, Mrs. Edith Mitchell, will assist Mrs. Solomon in the care of the youngsters.

The triplets spent a quiet night at home. "Everything went just like clock-work," Mrs. Solomon said today. "They didn't cry a bit. But I can't tell how long it will last."

At home to welcome the youngsters was Mary Margaret, the triplets' 21-month-old sister. She is quite pleased that her brother and sisters are home, Mrs. Solomon said. "She calls William Jerome, "Baby Bill," and she can tell which one is which by the arrangement of the cribs."

Which is more than the father can do. "I have to stop and think which one is which," he said. "But Mrs. Solomon can tell them apart," he added.

AKRON—(U.P.)—Nearly every gasoline filling station in Summit county was closed today for lack of supplies as a strike of gasoline truck drivers entered its fifth day.

The drivers called the strike Friday when negotiations with employers for higher wages reached a deadlock. Another meeting between the disputing parties was scheduled for this afternoon. It was estimated that 100,000 motorists in the county were affected. Only stations opened today were those located next to railroad spurs where they could be supplied directly from tank cars.

REBUFF: Germany Pays No Attention To Russ Protest

(By United Press)

BERLIN—Nazis, rejecting Russia's rebuke to Bulgaria of its consent to German troop occupation, said today that Germany could tolerate no restrictions on measures it deemed necessary to defeat Great Britain.

Authorized Nazi sources were asked to comment on Russia's communication to Bulgaria. They said Russia's attitude toward the German march was understandable but added:

"But simultaneously it must be understood that Germany can in no way tolerate any restrictions on measures it deems necessary to take to defeat Britain."

The high command said merely, in its daily communique:

"The march of German troops into Bulgaria continues according to plan."

Nazi informants, commenting on the Russian assertion that Bulgaria's action was calculated to spread the war, said:

"After the occupation of Bulgaria it is technically no longer

SHIFT: Turkey And Greece Send Troops To Face Germans

(By International News Service)

BELGRADE—Greece diverted part of her hard-fighting forces to the Thracian frontier today in anticipation of an imminent German drive against Salonika.

At the same time Turkey concentrated great contingents of crack troops on her side of the Thracian border and transformed the territory on each side of the Dardanelles and the Bosphorus into an armed camp.

All Turkish naval reservists were called up to active duty.

With at least 13 German divisions totalling almost 200,000 men already in Bulgaria and more on the way, threats of war in the Balkans mounted steadily.

Bulgaria sealed all her frontiers as domestic troubles followed in the wake of her capitulation to the Reich.

Reliable reports said that Foreign Minister Ivan Popoff would resign shortly. Premier Bogdan Filoff will take over his duties, the reports said.

Scores of persons were still under arrest following street battles in Sofia in which leftist students clashed with Fascist supporters. Police charged the rioters and rounded up the ringleaders.

A strict censorship was established over all mail and telephone communications throughout Bulgaria.

Reports to Belgrade said Germany had massed at least five army divisions — some 75,000 troops — in southwest Bulgarian regions adjoining the Greek border.

Other Nazi troops were reported concentrating in southeast Bulgaria near the Turkish frontier.

Jameson And Rogers Still At Odds, Welfare Bill Reveals

State Senator Joseph Jameson of Lorain county today apparently was still at odds with his brother-Republican, Senator P. H. Rogers, who with Jameson represents the district which includes Richland county.

In the Ohio senate last night, Senator Jameson urged that the state pardon and parole commission be placed under the jurisdiction of the state welfare department because welfare officials "know more about the parole system than anyone else in the state."

Jameson voiced his opposition to the commission just before the senate passed a bill sponsored by Rogers, which reorganizes the welfare department, creating four new divisions.

Jameson did not vote against the bill but he made a motion to have the measure sent back to the committee — with the hope that the aid for the aged division and the parole commission would be incorporated in the reorganization.

The bill, passed by a vote of 27 to 0, was sent to the house. It creates a division of corrections, division of social administration, division of mental diseases and division of business administration.

No second was heard to Jameson's motion and President Paul

Charmer Leads Selfish Life

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Remember the old fable about Jove breaking all the walnut shells and the halves wandering through life seeking their mates? A day or two ago I got a letter which made me think of that old fable. Here was a good man entirely wasted on a selfish woman who had exploited him at every turn. He would have made a good husband for the right girl—but the right girl never turned up. My correspondent has not yet married the lady and if anything better in the way of a matrimonial prospect appears, you know they will never be married. Trust the lady for that.

It seems they met on a train, on the longest trip from the East Coast to the West. The girl chattered and charmed her traveling companion, a rather serious sort of fellow, until he thought she was about the most bewitching thing he'd ever met. She confided she had been married unhappily and was considering a divorce because her husband was an alcoholic addict.

Although the gentleman of the train in no way encouraged her to get a divorce, a couple of months later he got a letter from her saying she was in his home city and was free. He showed her a good deal of attention and discovered she had given up an excellent position and decided to remain in the city where he lived.

She confessed her love for him and he found it necessary to advance her money to live on, over a long period of time. This amounted to a considerable sum. At last she secured a job, and was as popular with the men in the office where she worked as she had been with her train acquaintance.

My correspondent doesn't tell me that they were positively engaged, but he certainly had marriage in view. Meanwhile, she has taken up with a married man and is now constantly with him. He takes her to dinner and for long automobile rides, and they have to go to secluded places because, being allegedly happily married, he does not want to be seen. She declines to drop him because she doesn't want to hurt his feelings. That's consideration for you!

My correspondent, who might readily answer to the name of Mr. Easy Mark, feels some resentment over the fact that when she was depending on his generosity she didn't want to let him out of her sight. But now the married man, who is prosperous and fifteen or twenty years older than she is, has a first choice of dates. He's the type who demands sympathy because he is misunderstood by his wife—an old gag.

To sum up the situation, the gentleman she met on the train feels, despite the fact he cares so much about this gay young siren, that he wouldn't care to marry anyone unless he could put explicit faith in his wife's fidelity.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"That is a wager I won't take," I told Dicky. "But I'm sorry she tried to pump Carolyn, as I'm sure she did, for I won't be so sure—"

"So sure that Carolyn didn't gum up the works as far as getting the record straight on Marion is concerned," he said. "I don't think you need to worry. I sort of fancy I put the fear of God into the young woman awhile back. I don't think she'd dare to spill any beans."

"Perhaps not purposely," I said. "But she inadvertently might have dropped something which would make Helena suspicious."

"And the lady, while a sap in some ways, isn't at all slow on the up-take," he said. "But neither, I fancy, does she like to be kept waiting. Shall I tell her to come in?"

"Please," I said, and spent the seconds following his departure in bracing myself to meet any questions Helena might ask.

But when she came through the door, I saw that I need fear no contest of wits, for she was a woman distraught with nervous fear, yet trying to preserve the social amenities.

"Did you have a good nap?" she asked as she came toward me, then without waiting for an answer, she put out her hands in passionate appeal.

"Oh! Madge!" she said, "what is this all about? Lillian hasn't answered my letter. I couldn't get hold of Marion—she had gone home for the day when I called the college, and though I left a message asking her to call me back, she never did. And while I didn't ask Carol much just now because of her headache, I did ask her a question or two—"

"I'll wager you did," I said to myself, knowing Helena Brixton.

"And all the answer I got was a burst of hysterical tears," Carolyn't mother said, with eyes that said she was on the brink of such tears herself. "So I had to leave her alone. But what Ronald will say when he knows she's home, I have no idea. He simply terrifies me, Madge. He locks himself in his room all the time, and paces the floor up and down for hours, until I feel as though I were going crazy. And he doesn't eat enough to keep a canary alive. He won't come down to meals, and the trays I send up are almost untouched when they come back. He's living on black coffee and iced tea principally, and you know that can't keep up. Did Lillian tell you he'd lost fifteen pounds? Sam told me that you and Dicky had seen Lillian and Harry, and that they had asked you to come and see us. Does Lillian know what it's all about? Or is she just keeping things from me?"

"Lillian is as ignorant as you are, Helena," I assured her, and then swung into the tale I had planned. She listened attentively, her eyes fixed upon my face, and when I had finished, she put a question which took all my will power to answer calmly without betrayal of my dismaying surprise.

"Are you sure Marion is at the college?" she asked. "It seems so queer, nobody being able to get hold of her. And of course I couldn't depend upon what Carol would tell me. You know how girls and boys stand up for each other, what a horror they have of 'snitching'."

"Do I ever know?" I echoed fervently, with the memory of several episodes in the lives of Bill and Hank and more lately of Junior and Roderick, which had driven me nearly to the brink of nervous prostration. "But I am sure you can set your mind at rest on that score." I improvised swiftly, mindful of Lillian's injunction that Helena, potential mother-in-law of Marion, should not know of her disappearance. "While I did not see Marion, or talk to her, I have every reason to believe that she was in her rooms at college."

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, March 5.

A day in which some definitely quickening action may be brought to bear on some static, crystallized or lagging situation or project. New life may be instilled with enterprise, initiative and constructive plans of a practical and successful quality. Such purpose may be best furthered by association with large groups, political, diplomatic, fraternal or humanitarian. But there is need of much precaution in handling all papers and business deals as well as safeguarding family welfare and harmony.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a very progressive and productive year, with many stagnant and crystallized conditions springing into new life by a well directed and virile attack, with fresh plans and enthusiasms revitalizing and pushing to a constructive and gratifying finish. However, energetic co-operation of important bodies is indispensable no matter what the desired objective. Also caution and sagacity is needed as to handling of business and all other documents or correspondence. The personal life also calls for efforts to maintain harmony and understanding.

A child born on this day should have much audacity and initiative in bringing to fruitful issues old, effete and static affairs, by the infusing of new and dynamic tactics as well as determined effort and hard work.

Methods Of Removing Dyes

By MME. QUI VIVE

Many a woman who has been wedded to a bottle of hair dye suddenly decides to get a divorce from it. She is tired of the everlasting messing around. Or, if she has professional care, which means frequent touch up, she may come to the conclusion that the beauty overhead is more than the checkbook traffic can bear.

What's to be done? A woman can have her head shaved, wear a wig. Bobbed wigs are cleverly made; it is no hardship to wear one. As healthy hair grows at the rate of five or six inches a year, it is no life-long agony to wear factory frizzes. In six months there is enough wool for a permanent wave and a pineapple bob, short curls all over the head.

In beauty shops, dye removers are used. How successful they are depends upon the preparation that the white-haired lady has used. Some dyes are not responsive; they stick and hang on, while others give way before oil treatments and the use of removers. Experts in hair-dyeing are extremely skillful in giving treatments that make happy the woman who is through with coloring agents. Sometimes the thatch is bleached. No woman should attempt to do that herself. Combining dyes and bleaches may lead to surprising and tearful results.

Some dyes are metallic, some are synthetic, being made from products of coal tar; some are combinations of both. When planning to get undyed, the cash customer should give the operator a complete and truthful history of her experiences; what she has used, how often she has applied her coloring agents. If she has skipped gayly from one product to another, she must confess.

When pure henna has been the medium, equal parts of crude oil and castor oil are used, as hot as the scalp will bear. Applications are made twice a week, followed by a thorough shampoo within twelve hours. These treatments can not be self-administered; always we suggest professional attention in such an important matter as hair reconditioning.

When dyes that are purely vegetable in character have been used, there are ways of bleaching the hair so that the veneer is removed from the shafts. Silver dyes are difficult to deal with.

Though much dyeing is going on these days, there never has been a time when white hair was as fashionable. A youthful-appearing woman with a complexion of good coloring looks stunning when her crown has silvered. White hair must be carefully shampooed; indeed, it requires more careful attention than hair of any other color, and it must be exquisitely coiffured. It is a mistake to believe that it makes every woman look older. On a woman of middle age, it makes her look younger because it has a softening effect upon wrinkles.

"The Authority on Authorities"

WHY DID HE DO THAT?

To be a real bridge player, you must constantly ask yourself questions about the bids and plays made by the others—your partner as well as the opponents. If you do, you often can tell exactly what somebody else is trying to do, and hence can read his probable holding. If you don't, you may play right into the hands of the opposition.

2 NT	Pass	3 ♠

Bidding about like that occurred at most tables of a social duplicate game, in which there was a quite wide range of ability. Where there were players with no particular studious attitude toward the game, West's lead of the club K was followed by the Q—it should have been the J—and then by the J, which South ruffed. The declarer ran three trumps, later lost to the two red aces and thus made exactly 3-Spades.

At another table, East overtook the club K with his A, laid down the diamond A, and then led his club 5 to the J. West returned the club Q to be ruffed by South, and so the same 3-Spades got made at that table.

Where a bit stronger defensive players were on the job, East likewise overtook the club K with his A, laid down his diamond A and returned his club 5 to the J. That West player, however, asked himself why his partner had laid down the diamond A before repeating the club. He decided it was because the diamond was a singleton. So he then led his diamond 6, which East ruffed. The latter then tried his heart 4 to seek to give West the lead again. This also was successful. After taking his heart A, West led another diamond, his 5, and East scored a second ruff. Thus the defenders had taken the first six tricks and held the declarer to a total of seven, beating the contract two tricks, solely because West asked himself why his partner had played as he did.

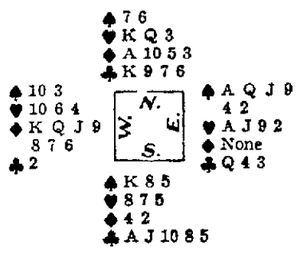
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West opens the bidding on this deal with 4-Diamonds and North doubles, what should East do?

Fugitive on a Dude Ranch + +

By Stephen Payne

(Copyright, 1941)

CHAPTER XXV

At noon Stuttering Jake returned from Jimtown with the truck, bringing with him laundry, groceries and many other articles. Shortly afterwards rain, which drove Flash Taylor and his party of dudes back to the ranch, drove in Tony Perriwell and Roberta Rowland.

The storm failed however to drive home old Sol Perriwell, who had gone fishing, or the cowboys. Therefore Nancy had no opportunity this afternoon to ask Bronc or Shorty or Gabby for help. Not that she had decided yet to ask any one of them. She was simply considering the possibilities.

She saw the hateful Tony, having left Roberta at her cabin, visit the bunkhouse, after which he too, like the majority of the guests, repaired to his own quarters. Later Nancy, looking out from the cook shack to the neglect of a dishpan full of green peas which must be shelled, saw Flash Taylor at the stable.

Yesterday morning this colorful dude wrangler had set her heart fluttering. A Prince Charming he was, tall, wide-shouldered, agile, a marvelous horseman and sure of himself. Flash treated the guests alike, one and all, courteously yet rather impersonally, and although he had paid her no particular attention, Nancy nevertheless decided to ask him for help.

Through the rain she hurried to the stable, where Flash Taylor turned from saddling a fresh horse, lifted his hat, smiled his bright, clean smile, and inquired, 'How're you makin' out, Bobbie?"

This was an opening of which Nancy took advantage. "Not too well, Flash I—I—" Good heavens, how could she go about telling a stranger of her deception and of the mess in which she now found herself?

"I sort of need a friend," she blurted, and floundered helplessly, unable to go on

The man's smile vanished. It was apparent that he misunderstood her. "Forget it, little girl," he said gently. "Seemed to me you had plenty of friends last evening They're good boys, to, every one of 'em. I—'scuse me for being blunt The plain truth is that since I took up this dude wrangling I've had so many girls make dead sets at me I've had to get—well, sort of hard-boiled"

"Is he telling me!" thought Nancy. "Thinks I m 'making a dead set' at him What conceit!"

Flash Taylor was going on. "Hard-boiled because I'm a married man, my dear child." The "dear Child" lifted Nancy's temper ninety degrees at one swift uprush. He might have spared her that! "I'm taking advantage of this storm when the tourists rush rush to shelter, to lope to Jimtown and visit my sweetheart, who 's also my wife. So 'long, Bobbie."

He swung up to his saddle, and without looking back rode out of the stable into the rain.

Her face on fire, Nancy told herself. "And that's a new experience for you, Nancy Eleanor Smith. Did the handsome hero step on you and bear down hard!"

She was returning to the cook house when the door of Cabin Number One opened and across the yard Roberta Rowland called softly, "Bobbie! Oh, Bobbie!"

Joining the other girl, Nancy found a breathless, starry-eyed Roberta, who caught her hand, drew her inside the cabin and closed the door.

'Ain't nobody snoopin' around now," whispered Roberta. "I got to talk to you. I'm all excited. You'd be, to, if you'd been a poor girl all your life and then suddenly a fairy story'd come true. I got thinking last night how now I'd had a taste of being a lady, a real honest-to-gosh lady with seads of dough and real jew lry—" She toyed with Nancy's pearl necklace, looked at the bracelet on her right wrist as if she could eat the diamonds.

"I got to thinking how I'd hate like pulling teeth to ever go back to waitin' table an scrubbin' skillets."

"What have I done? What have I done?" thought Nancy in a panic "I never considered what this exchange of places might do to this girl."

Roberta was talking on. "So though I like Slim heaps, like him beter'n any guy I ever seen. I knowed he couldn't give me nothin' and a girl's got to look out for herself. Don't I know!"

"Yes, of course, Roberta. But get to the point By the way, were there any letters for me today? Stuttering Jake said Barclay brought out the mail"

"No mail for either of us, Miss Marcia . . . I'm getting to the point 'Course Tony's a washout and he ain't my ideal a-tall. . . . Now don't get restless, Miss Farnsworth, and run out on me. You got to hear it all.

"I said to me last night before I went to sleep, though I might eat my heart out in a secret sorrow for a real dashing, romantic lover—and I do so like Slim!—I shouldn't ought to let no chance slip to get what money'll buy and to take a big step up the soc'ty ladder."

Nancy thought unhappily, "Can't the girl see Tony has neither money nor social position? That's he's impossible?"

"So I played up to Tony this morning at that interview. . . . I don't know how I done on that, Miss Farnsworth. The answers you gave me wouldn't do a-tall yet I sure was awful careful to say nothin' Maxwell seemed real tickled, though. . . . I played up to Tony and he sure did get mushy on our ride. 'My eyes were stars and jewels and my hair was—"

'He proposed and you accepted him?" said Nancy drawing a long, deep breath.

"Yes, that's it," cried Roberta and hugged Nancy warmly. "'Twas you give me this grand chance. How can I ever pay you or thank you?"

"Don't try, Roberta." Nancy held the girl a little away from her, looking into the other's eyes, her own very serious and cloudy with forebodings. "I'm afraid—I'm afraid you're going to have reason to hate me because—I must tell you this! Tony thinks you're as rich as—"

"You're wrong, Miss Farnsworth That don't cut no ice with him. He's got more dough than you can shake a stick at, what with oil wells and a gold mine and bang accounts. Even Slim told me about them oil wells and mines when I knew Slim would have liked to have me himself."

"Let me go on," Nancy resumed with determination. "Did you think of what will happen when that—that fellow finds out you're not Marcia Louise Farnsworth?"

"Sure I did! And I said to me, 'When a rich swell is proposing marriage to you, you got to be on the level with him so there won't be no fierce arguments afterwards.'"

Nancy's expression changed. What, or what was coming now?

"So when Tony got all steamed up and ready to say them mighty important words, I whispered, "Tony, I got to tell you I ain't who you think I am.'"

Nancy's thought whirled round and round "Then it's out. Our little secret?"

"No! Before I could say any more Tony hugged me and said right in my ear, 'Don't let that bother you, darling. I know what you're going to confess to your lover.' He said, 'You're not Marcia Louise Farnsworth But that makes no difference to me. I know who you are! Kiss me'"

Nancy sank down on the bed and put a shaking hand to her brown-gold hair. The room seemed to spin. At last she heard herself ask: "What did you say then, Roberta?"

"Oh, I almost screamed, I was so relieved and happy But I kept my voice low and I said, 'Do you, Tony? that makes everything nice and easy, because now I don't have to tell you all about me You know who I really am and—' Then he cut in, 'I'm glad you're not Miss Farnsworth and I love you for your own dear self! For the girl you really are, my darling, my darling, my darling!'

"After that we got engaged and he's going to get me the swellest ring money can buy He said we'd be married—married—as soon as I'd say the word I'd better say it real soon, hadn't I, Miss Farnsworth?"

"I—I'll have to think about that," murmured Nancy, rising and moving half-blindly to the door. She felt limp and numb. It did not stand to reason that Tony Perriwell, worthless, fortune-hunting sap, would propose marriage to Roberta Rowland knowing who she was. Yet she felt sure Roberta was not lying.

At the door she summoned a smile. "Thank you, Roberta, for telling me all about it. We girls love our romances, don't we? . . . But, Roberta, I'd wait till he gets that wonderful ring before I married. Yes, do wait for the ring."

"Just one thing more, Miss Farnsworth," trilled Roberta. "Tony and me decided not to tell just yet, not till he's ready to spring it. I didn't let him know I was going to tell you, neither But you and me have secrets, don't we?"

"Inded we do," agreed Nancy hastily "Now I must go."

Hurrying across the yard to her work at the cookhouse, she wondered half aloud, "If Tony knows so much about Roberta, does he also know all about me? . . . Hmm? Did that contemptible fake ranch buyer spill an earful to Anthony Thomas Perriwell? How could he know anything about Roberta to tell Tony? I wonder why he rushed off to Jimtown and brought out the ranch mail? There should certainly have been a letter for me!"

They had mountain trout for supper that evening, huge platters of speckled beauties rolled in corn meal and fried as only Ike Skittle could fry them. For no light rain could send old Sol home with the huge creel which he had won from a rich sportsman on a fishing bet, unfilled At this sport he would work like a slave, wading up to his waist in ice-cold water with never a thought of complaint.

Cold and soaked to the skin, he was nevertheless happy and proud as a peacock as he plodded into the cookshack with his catch.

"Look a-there, Ike. You too, Bobbie. I reckon that mess o' beauties'll make these dudes open their eyes and lick their chops. By dogies, if we had the time, I'd string 'em on a line and get Kirk Maxwell to take a picture of 'em for his article. Where's that ranch buyer? I want him to see 'em Aw, hell! He don't care nothin' 'bout fish ner fishin'.

"Ike, I was showin' that Barclay the bulls I picked out Prince Rupert 87, and says to the buyer, 'Look at the back on him.' There's a back what is a back" . . . Huh! What you think Barclay sed? He sed, 'I thought these animals were bulls. Is the correct name for them BACKS? . . . Floored me plumb

"Wal, you fix them trout up for supper, Ike. I got to change my duds and after supper I'm shore goin' to settle down by the fire an' read the papers."

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Tales From Times Square.

Groucho Marx, who in his quiet way is a celluloid Lucius Beebe, took his daughter, Miriam, and his young son to a Fifth Avenue store not long ago and bought himself and them three flashy yellow polo coats, all made exactly alike and from the same bolt of material.

As they walked out wearing the identical topcoats, Miriam turned to Groucho and exclaimed:

"Gosh—we look just like the Three Ritz Brothers!"

Over at Ruby Foo's a group was discussing the current cycle of crime dramas on Broadway.

"By the way," asked someone, "how did Burns Mantle rate 'Arsenic and Old Lace'?"

"I think," quipped Jimmy Dorsey, "he gave it three shrieks!"

Tommy Tucker is telling the story of how Mussolini bawled the dickens out of one of his African generals because of the plight of a desert regiment.

"A great army appeared in a mirage," alibied the general, "and our men were fooled. They could do nothing but withdraw."

"I can understand that," snapped Mussolini. "But how did the mirage capture them?"

Will Bradley provoked giggles at the Astor Bar with his legend of the reluctant draftee who pleaded bad vision when he was hailed before his local medical board. The doctors took him into the examining room and told him to read the chart on the wall.

"What wall?" asked the draftee.

Despite this, they continued testing him, and although he really had terrible eyesight he was somehow passed and sent to be outfitted. He stumbled his way to the sergeant who handed him a load of equipment.

"Okay," checked off the sergeant, "you've got a uniform, boots, hat and knapsack. Need anything else?"

"Yeah," moaned the desperate draftee. "A seeing eye dog!"

A playboy came into the Hurricane last night with a wealthy and very social lass whom he had just married.

"Do you think it's true," asked an observer, "that he married her for her money?"

"Did he!" exclaimed Jerry Cooper. "Why, when they returned from their honeymoon—he carried her safe deposit box over the threshold!"

Moss Hart was explaining to a group of out-of-towners that in New York there are two Lindy's restaurants, one on the west side of Broadway, the other on the east side.

"And," Hart added pointedly, "I understand the Japs have their eyes on the east Lindy's!"

A snooty gal traipsed into La Conga, spotted a chap near the door, and stalked over to him.

"What," she demanded, "is the idea of following me around like this?"

"Are you crazy?" asked the puzzled fellow. "I've been here for hours."

"Well," asserted the girl, "that just shows how anxious you are!"

Joan Edwards was ringsiding at the Stork Club when a beautiful but pensive movie star made her entrance.

"She's certainly gorgeous," observed Joan's escort. "Too bad she looks so sad."

"Yes," observed Joan. "She has a lot of gloomph."

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD — I'll bet Linda Darnell, the baby star, doesn't eat her spinach like a good girl, either.

She comes right out in meeting and says she doesn't like school.

She had spent the morning in a bridal veil, holding a wedding dress before her, and walking slowly up to Tyrone Power with love in her eyes. It was for a scene in "Blood and Sand." Anybody could see that Linda was this town's prettiest 17-year-old baby.

ROBBIN COONS

"You see him," directed Rouben Mamoulian aloud, for it was a silent scene, "Now you smile—ah-h!—your heart is beating so loudly they can hear it in Mexico. . . . That's it, ah-h!"

Then Tyrone embraced Linda, and they kissed, and the camera panned away to pick up her father on the stairway, looking on.

Afterward, Linda, out of her bridal veil and wearing slacks to lunch, said: "All the time I could see my schoolteacher watching me. I feel so silly—doing a love scene with my teacher standing by. I'll be so glad when June comes and I don't have to go to school any more."

So, for that matter, will be the assistant directors whose business it is to see that Linda gets in her camera time and yet abides by the state law requiring her to put in four hours of schooling and recreation before 4 p. m. each day.

"We can have her only 45 minutes more today," said one, "and we haven't got the scene yet."

I liked his cynical description of movie schooling: "The teacher asks the kid what's the name of that mountain in Egypt and then she goes before the camera and says I-love-you-darling and then she goes back to school and says she doesn't know what's the name of that mountain in Egypt."

He admitted, however, this was an exaggeration. "The youngsters come out of the movies generally with better training than contemporaries who go through the regular schools."

(To verify that argument, consult Shirley Temple, Jane Withers, Virginia Weidler, Edith Fellows, Mickey Rooney, Johnny Russell, Joan Carroll, Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper.)

ADMITS SLAYING WOMAN SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHER

Youth Tells Story of Roaming Over Country Assaulting Women In Homes.

(By United Press)

NEW YORK—Police said today that George Joseph Civek, 23, confessed that he roamed the country assaulting housewives who admitted him to their homes while their husbands were at work, and that he strangled Mrs. John Papas, 29, a Sunday school teacher in her apartment here Feb. 4.

He admitted, according to District Attorney Samuel J. Foley of the Bronx, that he had assaulted other women here, in Washington, D. C., Philadelphia, Newark, N. J., and in other cities. He had denied for several hours that he killed Mrs. Papas and was still under questioning.

Foley said that the manner of Civek's capture was "the smartest police work I have seen in my entire career." He did not say what this work consisted of, but it was understood that Civek had been trailed throughout half the United States by his handwriting, which was found on a piece of paper in the Papas apartment and identified on hotel registers in many cities where Civek had stopped.

Civek's motives were sometimes rape, sometimes robbery, sometimes both, Foley said. He confessed to 15 assaults or robberies of women.

He said he went to the Papas apartment early in the afternoon of Feb. 4 and told Mrs. Papas he was a friend of her husband. She invited him in. They talked for awhile and Mrs. Papas got out two glasses and a bottle of brandy.

"She told him she had been making cookies for he rhusband and offered me some," Foley quoted him. "We had coffee and cookies and I smoked several cigarets.

"She was on the sofa. I sat beside her. I slipped my left arm around her neck and pulled her head back. Then, with my right hand I removed my necktie and tied her hands behind her back.

"I carried her to the bedroom and put her on the bed."

Foley said Civek believed Mrs. Papas was dead when he put her on the bed. She was not raped. Civek ransacked the apartment, collecting jewelry that he said he sold three days later for $25.

BUCYRUS — A gift of $18,000 was offered today to the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A., by John Q. Shunk, Bucyrus manufacturer and philantropist.

The gift was made known at a meeting of directors last night when plans were made to rebuild the Y. M. C. A. structure which was damaged by fire last Friday.

Shunk stipulated that he would contribute the $18,000 if the board of directors obtains funds to pay off an old indebtedness on the building amounting to $7,500.

Gaining at the rate of $2,000 a week after a poor start this year, Richland county sales tax receipts for 1941 have mounted to $65,958, only $131 below last year's collections for the corresponding period, State Treasurer Don Ebright reported today.

Collections for the week ending Feb. 15, the last week for which complete figures were available, amounted to $10,521, an increase of $2,091 over receipts for that week last year.

Receipts to date in Ohio total $6,142,694 as compared to $5,584,218 last year, Ebright said.

It's for British War relief," chimed five high school girls selling peanuts and pop at the benefit boxing show at the armory last night, as they turned in proceeds to Friendly House officials. Usually the girls are permitted to keep their tips. The girls doing their bit for the British relief fund were of Macedonian, Rumanian, Polish, Serbian and Italian descent.

News of events in the Mansfield Boy Scout program travels a long distance. Floyd Dent, area Scout executive, received a letter today from James Roberts, stationed on the U. S. S. Tripp, which was in Puerta Rico. The letter contained a clipping showing Dent receiving New Year greetings from the troop in Ashland. The message was carried from Ashland to Mansfield by relays of Boy Scouts running with the message.

City hall was observing its 16th birthday today but there will be no cake to slice or party to celebrate the anniversary. City Auditor Paul L. Kelley, one of the half dozen municipal employes who moved into the new building on March 4, 1925, recalled that it was the same day that former President Calvin Coolidge was inaugurated in Washington. He also recalled that eight mayors have held forth in an administrative capacity during that time.

Dozens of Mansfield and Richland county youths who are in college this winter face the prospect of going into the army as soon as school is out next June. With less than a third of their registrants classified, the county's three selective service boards already have 53 students on their "eligible" lists and by the time June comes around there probably will be that many more. All students who registered last October will be deferred until June, but they are eligible as soon as they leave school. Board 1 in Mansfield already has deferred more than 30 youths who were classified as students.

The building will be a one-story brick structure 32 by 74 feet and will serve as a combined vocational and agricultural shop.

Member of the board of the Shiloh school also met last night to discuss similar plans but no decision was reached.

HEARINGS ON CITY-COUNTY BOOST START

GOP Leaders Favor Increase, Dems Stand For Flat Hike of Five Millions.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Prospects of the cities and counties receiving an extra slice of the sales tax revenue were brightened today.

Republican leaders in the senate said that if any surplus was left after appropriations had been made for welfare institution improvements, the local governments should receive first consideration.

At the same time the senate Democratic minority pledged itself to fight for a $5,000,000 increase in the city-county share of the sales tax. A bill passed by the house holds the allocation to $12,000,000 a year.

The Democratic senators met again today to decide their position on a two-year extender of the one-cent-a-gallon liquid fuel tax, which was on the calendar for a vote. The levy produced $14,500,000 last year.

The statement conceding the local governments' claim to surplus sales tax funds came from Senators Frank E. Whittemore, Republican floor leader, and Grant P. Ward of Columbus.

Dispatches from the Associated Press in Columbus today said that Senator Joseph Jameson, of the 27th-29th district, had not yet made up his mind on the proposal to increase sales tax allocations to cities and counties. He was "seeking more information," he said. Senator P. H. Rogers, fellow Republican from the same district, said he would agree to a $2,000,000 increase but not one of $5,000,000.

Whittemore estimated $4,000,000 or $5,000,000 would be needed for the welfare improvements.

Committee hearings on the sales tax allocation were begun in the senate today while majority leaders deferred a vote on the $5,000,000 auto license tag diversion bill.

Whittemore had predicted that the tag proposition, closely linked with the sales tax bill in the state revenue picture, would be taken up today and passed.

Last night, however, it was discovered that two Republican senators would be absent today. So, rather than risk defeat, Whittemore had the vote postponed. Solid Democratic opposition has been indicated.

The auto tax revenues are now ear-marked for highways. Whittemore's bill would permit the cities and counties to use $5,000,000 of their share for general operating expenses, traffic enforcement and street cleaning.

The senate last night approved unanimously and sent to the house a bill reorganizing the welfare department into four administrative divisions: business administration, corrections, mental diseases and social administration.

Kromer, Michigan Grid Star, Joins Navy Air Corps

DETROIT—(AP)—As soon as he received his birth certificate from Lorain, O., Paul Kromer, University of Michigan football halfback, will be sworn in as a member of the U. S. Navy Air corps.

The 165-pound gridder, leading Western Conference scorer as a sophomore in 1938, passed his physical examination at the Grosse Isle training base yesterday.

Kromer, who comes from Lorain, said he had been contacted by numerous professional football teams, but evidently prefers the air corps to pro football.

Kromer, 23, has been beset by injuries in his last two years of football. In his last collegiate game against Ohio State, he returned a punt 80 yards for a touchdown as Michigan won, 40 to 0.

COVINGTON, Ky.—(AP)—William Davison, 19, the northern Kentucky "flash" bandit, recovered in his cell in the Kenton county jail from an attempt to end his life by slashing his left wrist with a razor blade.

He made the attempt yesterday in the cell where he is held to await trial on robbery charges.

Fast Flyweight Battle Pleases Benefit Card Fans

Sport Podge by REX HESS

A Toledo home-town cage rivalry blossoms into full bloom at Mansfield's Senior high gym tonight when Chuck Chuckovits' Toledo White Huts tangle with Tommy Harmon's Michigan stars in the professional highlight of the local hoop season.

The rivalry involves Chuckovits, former Toledo university star, and Jimmy Rae, Toledo boy who captained the University of Michigan quintet a year ago.

Hank Rigney, veteran professional sports promoter of Toledo, and business manager of the White Huts, tells the story:

"When Chuck came over from Akron and ran wild on Ohio college courts for the Rockets, setting new state-wide scoring records and spreading havoc among opposing quintets, Toledo papers went wild over this bucket-tossing phenom, as they should.

"But they forgot that Rae, son of a prominent Toledo physician, was making a great reputation as a Michigan guard, and Jimmy's family looked in vain in Toledo papers for latest word of their son's activities.

"The papers did mention the fact that Jimmy was elected captain of the Wolverines, and then forgot him again, and when Rae played on an All-American team against the Globe Trotters in Chicago last fall, the fact was never recorded in the Toledo press.

"'What goes on here?' asked Rae's family and friends, "Isn't the Big Ten a tougher circuit than the Ohio Conference'?"

Since Rae is regarded as one of the best guards in the country, he'll probably get the job of holding down the fast-chucking Chuckovits in tonight's game.

And fans who can take their eyes off the great Tom Harmon for a little while, should see a great individual battle when Chuckovits and Rae collide.

And so we cheer, in our best collegiate manner: Rae for Chuckovits!

When Ashland High hoopsters walloped Galion last Friday night 67-26, the A's ran up their highest cage score in the past 20 years.

Back in the 1919-20 season Ashland swamped Galion 67-14. The Galions waited 20 years to take their medicine again.

Tiffin's powerful Columbian quintet, first opponent of the Mansfield Tygers in the Sandusky tournament next Saturday night, poured it on last week as they won the undisputed Buckeye League championship with a 40-19 victory over Fostoria.

Forward Bob McClory chalked up 27 points on 12 buckets and three free tosses. Stop that guy, you Tygers!

John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed cagers renew their rivalry Thursday night when they meet in a return game at Appleseed gym.

Lest anyone should get the idea this is merely another schoolboy event of no importance, let it be recalled that an estimated crowd of 1,400 jammed the Simpson gym for their first game, won by Simpson 30-26.

Reserve teams are booked at 7:15 in a preliminary tilt, and the big game is on schedule for 8 p. m.

At least two fans didn't see that 21 second knockout scored by Frankie Lee of Friendly House over Bob Talbert of Toledo at the British War Relief benefit fund boxing show at the Armory last night.

And they were a pair of interested fans, Paul Carbetta and Joe Blahnik.

Carbetta, seconding Lee, jumped down off the ring and into a bucket of water as the bell sounded starting the fight, and splashed Blahnik at ringside. Both glanced down to note the damage, and by the time they looked up, Talbert was on the canvas and the count had mounted to five.

Harmon Brings Wolverines

TOMMY HARMON

JIMMY RAE

Tom Harmon, America's No. 1 football hero, will occupy the spotlight in Mansfield High school gym tonight at 8:30 when he brings his star studded Michigan University Wolverines here for a basketball game with the Toledo White Huts, led by the sharpshooting Chuck Chuckovits. Mansfield City League All-Stars play host to the Myers Cleaners of Ashland in a 7:30 preliminary. The dynamic Harmon, who led the Michigan cagers in scoring during his sophomore year, is expected to play the entire game against Chuck's quintet. The Wolverines are loaded with nationally famous stars. Unquestionably the greatest of these is Long Jake Townsend, the "Hoosier Hatshot," who is recognized as the top cager in Michigan history. Jimmy Rae, captain of last year's Michigan quintet, and a member of the 1940 All-American team. Herb Brogan, captain of this year's Michigan varsity, and Eddie Thomas, teammate of Townsend's in 1937-38-39, are likely starters along with Harmon and Townsend. The Chuckovits combine is well-liked by Mansfield fans, largely because the players battle every game out to the finish. Chuckovits, himself, has always reached double digit scoring figures here, regardless of the opposition.

Demand Big Ten Probe

Chicago, Still In Loop, Asks Investigation.

CHICAGO — (INS) — The Daily Maroon, University of Chicago student newspaper, called today in an editorial for a "thorough investigation" of the athletic activities of its competitors, including the Big Ten.

* * *

The editorial apparently was a reaction to indications the university may be considering withdrawing from intercollegiate basketball competition, as it did a year ago from football.

Rumors that Chicago may be preparing to withdraw even further into its athletic shell came in the wake of a statement by university President Robert M. Hutchins last week to the effect that "if Chicago's basketball defeats are interfering with the happiness of students or the welfare of the university," the school might change its basketball schedules.

Chicago last night rounded out its Big Ten basketball season with 12 defeats and no victories.

The Daily Maroon, assailing any withdrawal from competition as "cowardice," suggested rather that the university should take the lead in a probe of subsidization of athletes by other schools. To face competitors on an even plane, the editorial said, the university should not weaken its schedules or resort to "subsidizing players as our competitors do," but instead prefer charges against other schools and provoke an investigation of conditions "which students, many alumni and most of the interested public realize exists in schools of the Big Ten."

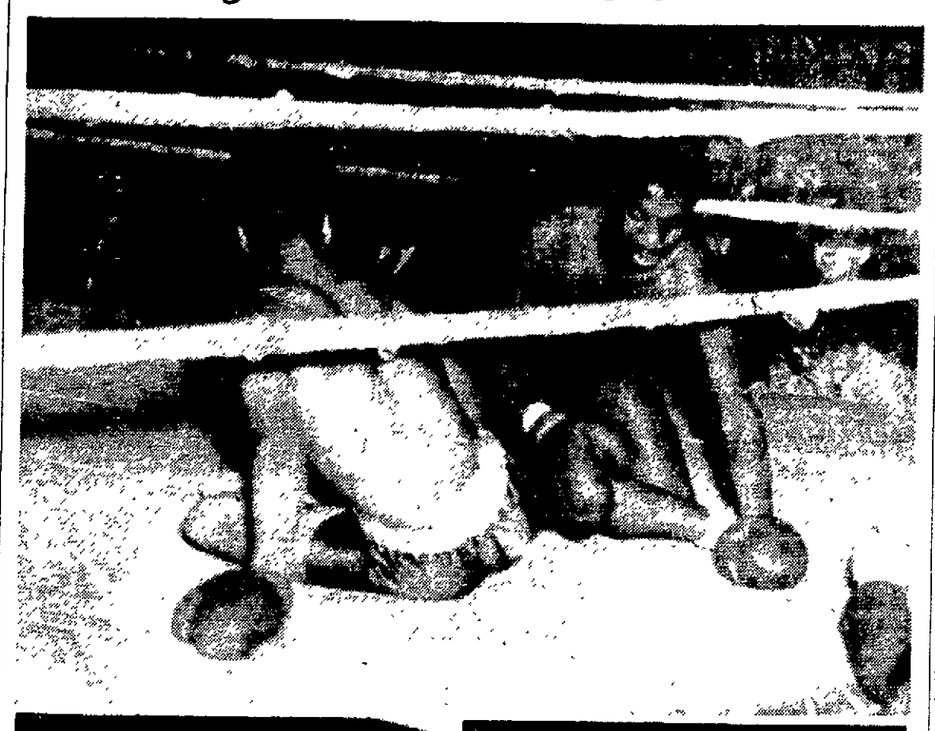
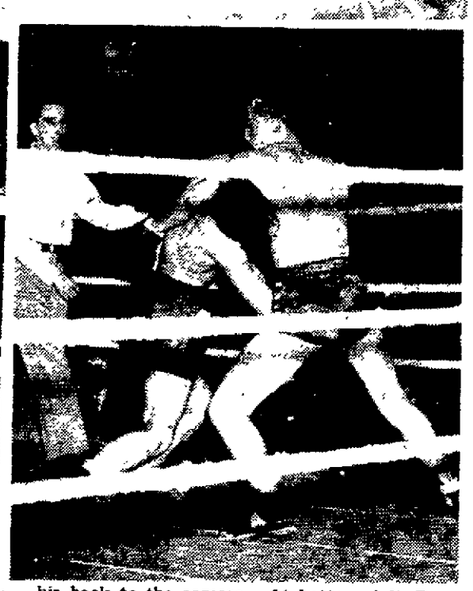
Here's Ring Action at Benefit Show





"Imagine meeting you here," Leonard Waddell, Friendly House flyweight, and Marvin Moreland, Toledo, could have been saying to each other in the top picture as both went to the canvas in a flurry of gloves in the main bout of the British War Relief benefit boxing show at the armory last night. Waddell has his back to the camera. At bottom, left, Don and Dick Eichinger engage in a brotherly scramble. Don is at the left as the name on his trunks indicates. At bottom, right, Ed Cook of Fremont ducks under Bob Garber's arm and hangs on after taking a hard punch to the head.

Scots Tangle With Muskies

Meet Final Obstacle in Drive For League Title.

(By Associated Press)

The Wooster Scots meet the final obstacle to their bid for the Ohio basketball conference crown tonight in a game with Muskingum at New Concord.

By winning, Wooster would finish the season with 12 wins and one loss, well ahead of Mt. Union which has already finished a season of eight wins and one loss.

However, if the Muskies pull an upset, the Scots would drop below Mt. Union in the percentage column and give the Mounts the championship.

Marietta college and John Carroll finished their seasons last night at Cleveland with the Ohio river quintet eking out a 48-47 victory.

Relief Fund Aided

Michigan Champ Fails To Show, Suspension Action Being Considered.

By REX HESS
(News-Journal Sports Editor)

TWO little flyweights, Leonard Waddell of Friendly House and Marvin Moreland of Toledo, picked the British War Relief fund benefit boxing show at the armory up by its bootstraps last night, and lifted it to a pleasing success in the face of a threatened sad disappointment.

Al Bondy, Michigan state light-heavyweight champion from Monroe, Mich., failed to show up for his scheduled main bout with Friendly House Al Sauers, and the card seemed doomed to flop until Waddell and Moreland got in there in the final bout and slugged toe-to-toe through three last heats of milling.

A paying crowd of 513 fans went away satisfied with their evening's entertainment, thanks to the flailing flyweights. Russ Gimbel, Friendly House maestro, said today steps may be taken to bar Bondy from further ring action.

Gimbel today was busy checking over taxes and paying final expenses of the show, but estimated the war relief fund would net in the neighborhood of $200 from the card. An official report can be expected tomorrow, he said.

Bondy was to have come here with Toledo fighters, who waited an extra hour for him in Toledo, and then were late arriving in Mansfield so that the show got away to a slow start.

The card moved rapidly enough when it did get under way, as one knockout followed another.

Little Don and Dick Eichinger opened it with a three-round exhibition, and then came Mike Sauers earning a well-deserved verdict over Kenny Leiter of Toledo at 135 pounds.

Ed Laubert of Fremont put the whammy on Bob Emerson of Y. M. C. A. in one minute, 14 seconds of the first round. Emerson was down for a nine count, got up to take a hard right to the head, and the bout was stopped for a technical kayo with Emerson on the canvas. They were lightweights.

Sharp shooting Frank Truly of Friendly House knocked out Phil Staley of Yoakam A. C. in 1 minute, 17 seconds of the first round, flooring Staley for a 5-count with a sharp right to the chin, and then for 10 with another order of the same. They weighed 135.

Frankie Lee, Friendly House bantam, scored te quickest knockout of the card in 21 seconds as he caught Bob Talbert of Toledo flush on the button with a long left swing, that carried all the leverage in Frankie's body. Talbert was on his back, listening to the birdies before the crowd was set to follow the proceedings.

Adam Miller, Yoakam A. C. light-heavy, gained a close decision over Junior Mack, stocky Toledo-

'Studio Scandals' Starts Tomorrow On Madison Stage

Beginning tomorrow afternoon, the Madison will present the stage show, "Studio Scandals," featuring the Lucky Girls. The presentation will run through Thursday evening in connection with the regular movie showing.

Miss Evelyn Willard, one of the Lucky Girls, is featured as a dancer, and others in the cast of 35 include the Youman brothers, who are unusual with their musical interpretations. These boys have appeared on the Rudy Vallee and Fred Allen radio broadcasts.

The show played a successful run in Europe until the war forced them to return to America. Since that time they have played many of the larger cities and were a feature of the Roxy theater in New York City only recently.

Rudy Vallee Praises Talent In Madison Stage Show

Special Bargain Matinees

Miss Jerry Donahue, one of the many beautiful girls in Studio Scandals, unusual 35-people road show opening at the Madison Theater for 2 days, Wednesday and Thursday, March 5th and 6th. This out of the ordinary show features glamorous beauties and sensational stars returned from triumphant 20,000 mile European tour. They have been breaking house records everywhere. And no wonder! Even the famous Billy Rose is said to have praised the girls as being the most beautiful and talented he had ever seen. One of the famous beauties created such a sensation in Birmingham that the Birmingham Post gave her column after column of publicity and said, "Miss Evelyn Willard is one of the most beautiful showgirls of the nation." Speaking of the show's starring comedy team, Edison and Louise, the London Times wrote, "the fastest and funniest act ever seen here." One of the many unusual acts is the famous Youman Brothers, that act that proved such a sensation at the Roxy in New York, that they were requested to play privately for President Roosevelt. These three boys, by the use of various musical instruments, do amazing impressions of America's leading name bands. They play the music of Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman, Kay Kyser, and all the other great bands so realistically, that you truly believe you are listening to the bands themselves. If you want the thrill of hearing all of your favorite name bands at one time, that is exactly what you'll get when you hear the sensational Youman Brothers, the only act of its kind in the world. Rudy Vallee thought so much of them that he persuaded them to appear on his coast to coast program. Don't miss this great show. Studio Scandals plays the Madison for 2 days, Wednesday and Thursday, March 5th and and 6th.

STOCKS GIVEN MILD SUPPORT IN SLOW TRADE

Buyers Show Hesitancy at Start Due To Balkan War Situation.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Mild buying support came into the stock market today after considerable hesitancy at the opening.

Given an early lift were Bethlehem Steel, Republic Steel, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Glenn Martin, General Electric, Paramount and Standard Oil of N. J.

Bonds and commodities were without definite trends.

The Balkan war picture remained as a market handicap, brokers believed.

Market analysts found some comfort in the statement of the American Telephone Co. which disclosed that, despite a sharp jump in taxes, the concern was able to emerge from 1940 with net profits of $10.08 a share on the common versus $9.24 in the preceding year.

Studied also was the federal reserve summary of member banks in 101 cities for the week ended Wednesday revealing a rise of $7,000,000 in commercial, industrial and agricultural loans.

port officials 55 days in which to improve runways and to install obstruction and boundary lights for night flying which is included in the course.

A federal aeronautics expert from Cleveland is expected to come to Mansfield later this week to approve the application now on file in Washington.

Harrington said the Ohio Public Service company, requested by the N. A. A. chapter several weeks ago to install obstruction lights on power poles will make the installation within the next three or four weeks.

The chapter intends to purchase portable boundary lights for marking runways at night.

The advanced training includes 75 hours of flying, 10 of which will be at night. Instruction is principally in acrobatics similar to that given military pilots and cross country flying.

Pilots are expected to be graduated this fall with restricted commercial licenses.

Ed Cook of Fremont was a bit too big and strong for Bob Garber of Friendly House, and took a decisive verdict in their scramble at 146 pounds. Cook won every round but Bob was in there trying all the way, and made an interesting scrap.

Free-swinging Joe Sauers, Friendly House 150 pounder, blasted Dick McConnell of Toledo out of the picture in 1:13 of the opening round with a short, hard right to the chin that had McConnell walking on rubber legs five minutes after he was dragged to his corner.

Waddell was stronger at the finish than his spidery opponent, Marvin Moreland, and by that margin won the nod over the Toledoan after both boys had swung themselves arm-weary and legstiff through the rousing top bout.

Until the third round, when Moreland visibly weakened, it was an even battle with never a dull moment.

ASHLAND CLUB SEES MOVIES

Lecture Given on Functions of Investment Bankers at Meeting of Women.

ASHLAND—Under the auspices of the Investment Bankers of America films were shown to illustrate a lecture given by one of the representatives to the Ashland Business and Professional Women's club Monday night. "The function of the Investment Bankers," he stated, "is to mobilize and direct accumulated individual funds into channels of long time production."

He explained the difference between an investment broker and the investment banker. "The amount of money now in banking institutions is there," he said, "because of the feeling of insecurity of industrialists. This feeling of insecurity is fed by the fear of taxes, the fear of labor and the fear of government competition with established business, also because of the economic experimentation such as payment for non production."

The cure for this idle money and non-expansion might be found, he suggested by the replacement of worn out and antiquated machinery in the already established industries and by the development of newer industries. Investing in America's Future was the caption of the pictures showing the wealth of the nation as in tanks resembling the common oil tanks, and the effect of the various elements upon the flow of that wealth.

Preceding the lecture a chile dinner was served by the legislation committee. The regular meeting followed the lecture and 50 members participated in the transaction of routine business.

NAZI MISSION BRINGS TURKEY HITLER MESSAGE

Flying Party Reaches Ankara, Confers For Half Hour With President.

of German troops from the north continued apace, with lines of Nazi motorized equipment, tanks, anti-aircraft guns and field artillery—sometimes in columns 50 miles long—streaming south into Bulgaria through three mountain passes.

A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslav capital, reported "increasing preliminary conversations are underway for an armistice between Greece and Italy."

But this was unconfirmed elsewhere, and London said Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the imperial general staff, were working out a plan with Greek government leaders in Athens to rush aid to Greece in the event of a German invasion.

Soviet Russia, still the No. 1 riddle of the war, was reported reinforcing her troops on the Prut river frontier, facing Rumania, as Rumania's mobilization continued under the supervision of German staff officers.

Russia's diplomatic rebuke for permitting Nazi legions to overrun her country injected uncertainty in the situation.

Neither London, nor Berlin, however, reflected any belief that Russia had stepped beyond her position of defensive neutrality by the note handed yesterday to the Bulgarian minister to Moscow.

It said, "the soviet government cannot share the opinion of the Bulgarian government" that the entrance to German troops into Bulgaria will preserve peace in the Balkans. The note advised King Boris that the soviet could not support his government "in its present policy," which it said might extend "the sphere of war" and involve Bulgaria in the conflict.

In London, the press association described the note as "mere formal protest."

German diplomatic circles in Belgrade said the Russian statement was only of "theoretical importance" because Russia was not an offensive force.

The possibility existed, however, that the Soviet statement might have greater influence in Turkey, which has watched the Kremlin closely in shaping her foreign policy.

The immediate intentions of Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia, now that German troops are opposite their frontiers, remained undisclosed. Turkey and Greece were said to be moving swiftly to strengthen their Bulgarian borders, while Yugoslav diplomatic circles have indicated Yugoslavia would swing into the Axis fold sometime this week.

London gave no confirmation of Italian press reports that Britian already had landed strong forces at Salonika, barely 60 miles from the Bulgarian frontier.

In the far east, a Japanese spokesman said negotiators from Thailand and French Indo-China had submitted to their governments a new, modified proposal by Japan for settlement of their frontier dispute.

Japanese sources at Vichy said the French ministers had accepted the proposal, except for a few minor details. It was said to make territorial concessions to Thailand, but not as large as the big slices of Cambodia and Laos originally demanded. The Japanese spokesman said Japan would press for an agreement before Friday, when the present armistice in the border fighting expires.

Domei, Japanese news agency, said Japan's Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka and French Ambassador Charles Arsene Henry had "failed to reach complete agreement of views," but would meet again soon, probably tomorrow.

In the British-German air struggle, RAF raiders reported setting great fires at Cologne, in the industrial Rhineland; and other RAF night bombers jabbed at Nazi invasion ports at Brest, Ostend and Boulogne as well as German airdromes in occupied France.

Hitler's high command acknowledged that the RAF dropped explosives "and a large number of incendiaries at several places in western Germany, killing and injuring some civilians and damaging houses.

In the African war, both the German and Italian high commands asserted that German troops had defeated British mechanized forces in a second skrimish in the Libyan desert.

These other developments merged from the war fronts:

The British admiralty said allied merchant shipping losses for the week ended Feb. 23-24 totaled 14 ships of 60,868 tons.

British headquarters in Cairo announced capture of an additional 1,000 Italians in Ethiopia on March 1.

The house of commons in London was told that about 140,000 Italians had been made prisoners of war in Africa.

The daily German war bulletin said a combat plane sank a 3,000-ton ship off England, damaged another, and that other bombers sank an 8,000-ton merchant ship west of the Hebrides.

Axis aircraft bombed the Suez canal area without material damage, the British in Cairo said.

Attack Bombers As They Come Home

LONDON —(U.P.)— British fighting planes waited over German airports last night and attacked German bombers returning from raids on Britain, destroying one and damaging another, the air ministry said today.

The "offensive patrol" of enemy airdromes was a new development in night fighting.

Claim 10,000 Taken In Somaliland Drive

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony — (U.P.) —Official communiques reported today that a two-pronged drive from Italian Somaliland is approaching the Ethiopian frontier and that nearly 10,000 prisoners have been captured in the fast moving Somaliland campaign.

(Middle east headquarters at Cairo said that "another thousand" prisoners were captured March 1 in British operations in Somaliland as the drive neared the southeast frontiers of Ethiopia.)

British forces moving north towards the southeastern corner of Ethiopia have reached a point only 60 miles from the Ethiopian frontier at Bulo Burti while another column at Iscia Baidoa is only about 100 miles from the frontier.

SENATORS STILL REMAIN AT ODDS

Welfare Measure In Debate Shows Jameson, Rogers Lack Harmony.

M. Herbert immediately ordered that the bill be voted upon.

"This bill doesn't go far enough," Jameson said. He added that he had made an "investigation" and said opposition to including the pension division in the reorganization was caused by fear "of too much criticism."

"I also feel that the parole board should be revamped," he said. "I think that the director of welfare and his assistants know more about the parole system than anyone else in the state.

"The criticism of the parole board has been a re-hashing of the original trial of the prisoner."

Paroles, he said, should be based on the condition of the prisoner at the time when the crime was committed, his prison record and whether he could get a job upon release to support dependents.

"I think that the welfare department could more satisfactorily do that than the parole board," Jameson said.

Rep. H. L. Mason, D., Wyandot, has introduced a resolution in the house calling for an investigation of the pardon and parole commission.

ter laboratory at Wright Field."

The department added that the strike had been called as a result of the resumption of work by the Penner Installation corporation of New York City under its $36,800 contract for installing electrical equipment in one building at the field.

The AFL Building Trades council in Dayton, O., called a previous walkout, the department said, because of a past dispute between the AFL and the Penner corporation and also because the five employes of the Penner corporation were members of a CIO union.

The AFL members returned to work following the initial walkout, the statement continued, after the Penner corporation had been told to suspend operations temporarily. Subsequent efforts to compose the differences between the AFL and the Penner corporation failed.

"In view of the fact that the Penner corporation has a valid contract for the performance of work on this project," the department concluded, "and in view of the urgent necessity for its immediate accomplishment, the war department had no alternative but to instruct the Penner corporation to resume work."

RAPS 'POISON' OF OPPOSITION

Early Links Attacks on U. S. Defense Effort With Aid Bill Opponents.

present chiefs of the defense commission and office for production management.

It is perfectly natural, Early said, that when the British aid bill passes, Mr. Roosevelt will act with an advisory group of his cabinet.

There is nothing new in that, the secretary added, as Mr. Roosevelt has been doing so right along and will continue to do so.

"What I suspect some people are doing today is to attempt to confuse, and to make trouble for the government, I think a good many efforts to confuse and mystify and inject poison into the defense setup are now going on.

"It's probably related to the opposition of the lease-lend bill," Early said.

Administration leaders, striving to hasten final action on the British aid bill, were reported to be giving serious consideration to an amendment "guarantee" that neither the army nor navy would be utilized in the delivery of war supplies to Great Britain.

The amendment, sponsored by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), apparently was drafted to satisfy demands made for a prohibition against the use of naval vessels or troops, thus eliminate at least one obstacle to speedy enactment of the measure.

O'Mahoney, it was learned, has talked with Secretary Hull, Vice President Wallace and members of the senate leadership regarding his amendment, which would provide that defense articles "shall not be delivered outside the Western Hemisphere by the land or naval forces of the United States without the consent of congress."

The proposal generally was regarded as a compromise for the amendment offered by Senator Ellender (D-La.), which states that nothing in the lease-lend bill can be interpreted as giving the president any additional authority to send troops out of this hemisphere.

The favorable reception given the O'Mahoney amendment supplied additional evidence that White House lieutenants were concentrating all efforts on obtaining a final roll call by Saturday, despite opposition forecasts that this timetable is too optimistic.

The United States had 37,336,890 dwelling units at the time of the 1940 census.

Council Authorizes Bids on New Cruiser; Also Arranges For Truck Purchase.

SHELBY—City council authorized Mayor W. R. Morris to advertise for bids for a new cruiser for the police department and a truck for street department when the council met Monday night at city hall for regular semi-monthly session.

If the old cruiser is not traded on the new one, it will be used for police work here when the new cruiser is out of the city on police business. At present the city does not have a patrol car on duty when it is necessary for police to use a car out of town.

Councilmen Kenneth Rothlisberger and Charles Swanger were appointed as a committee from the council to assist Mayor Morris draw up specifications for the bids.

An appointment was not made by Mayor Morris for the junior firemen's post left open when Harley Evans resigned recently. Mayor Morris said that he did not plan to make an appointment until the council's session in April 7.

ASHLAND CLUB SEES MOVIES

Lecture Given on Functions of Investment Bankers at Meeting of Women.

ASHLAND—Under the auspices of the Investment Bankers of America films were shown to illustrate a lecture given by one of the representatives to the Ashland Business and Professional Women's club Monday night. "The function of the Investment Bankers," he stated, "is to mobilize and direct accumulated individual funds into channels of long time production."

He explained the difference between an investment broker and the investment banker. "The amount of money now in banking institutions is there," he said, "because of the feeling of insecurity of industrialists. This feeling of insecurity is fed by the fear of taxes, the fear of labor and the fear of government competition with established business, also because of the economic experimentation such as payment for non production."

The cure for this idle money and non-expansion might be found, he suggested by the replacement of worn out and antiquated machinery in the already established industries and by the development of newer industries. Investing in America's Future was the caption of the pictures showing the wealth of the nation as in tanks resembling the common oil tanks, and the effect of the various elements upon the flow of that wealth.

Preceding the lecture a chile dinner was served by the legislation committee. The regular meeting followed the lecture and 50 members participated in the transaction of routine business.

Bohn Stresses Importance of Teaching, Living Democracy at Meeting.

ASHLAND—Superintendent of Schools J. E. Bohn addressed the Parent-Teacher association and guests in commemoration of the 44th anniversary of the founding of the nationally popular P. T. A. His address dealt with the importance of teaching democracy and living democracy for the benefit of the growing children, the future citizens.

He said "Since the school deals with all the children of all the people it becomes the business of education to teach that we have a job to do at present which includes provision for the common defense and promotes the general welfare so that we may secure the blessings of liberty. A people will fight vigorously for that which they understand and cherish. If our children can be taught to understand what our liberty means we need not hesitate to turn the future over to them."

An elementary school orchestra under the leadership of Miss Eernita Short played several selections. A sixth grade choir of more than 100 voices also under the guidance of Miss Short, sang several numbers. Mrs. T. A. Rees with Mrs. Ray Vanosdall at the piano directed the Mothersingers as they presented two songs.

NAZI MISSION BRINGS TURKEY HITLER MESSAGE

Flying Party Reaches Ankara, Confers For Half Hour With President.

of German troops from the north continued apace, with lines of Nazi motorized equipment, tanks, anti-aircraft guns and field artillery—sometimes in columns 50 miles long—streaming south into Bulgaria through three mountain passes.

A Swiss telegraphic agency dispatch from Belgrade, Yugoslav capital, reported "increasing preliminary conversations are underway for an armistice between Greece and Italy."

But this was unconfirmed elsewhere, and London said Britain's Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the imperial general staff, were working out a plan with Greek government leaders in Athens to rush aid to Greece in the event of a German invasion.

Soviet Russia, still the No. 1 riddle of the war, was reported reinforcing her troops on the Prut river frontier, facing Rumania, as Rumania's mobilization continued under the supervision of German staff officers.

Russia's diplomatic rebuke for permitting Nazi legions to overrun her country injected uncertainty in the situation.

Neither London, nor Berlin, however, reflected any belief that Russia had stepped beyond her position of defensive neutrality by the note handed yesterday to the Bulgarian minister to Moscow.

It said, "the soviet government cannot share the opinion of the Bulgarian government" that the entrance to German troops into Bulgaria will preserve peace in the Balkans. The note advised King Boris that the soviet could not support his government "in its present policy," which it said might extend "the sphere of war" and involve Bulgaria in the conflict.

In London, the press association described the note as "mere formal protest."

German diplomatic circles in Belgrade said the Russian statement was only of "theoretical importance" because Russia was not an offensive force.

The possibility existed, however, that the Soviet statement might have greater influence in Turkey, which has watched the Kremlin closely in shaping her foreign policy.

The immediate intentions of Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia, now that German troops are opposite their frontiers, remained undisclosed. Turkey and Greece were said to be moving swiftly to strengthen their Bulgarian borders, while Yugoslav diplomatic circles have indicated Yugoslavia would swing into the Axis fold sometime this week.

London gave no confirmation of Italian press reports that Britian already had landed strong forces at Salonika, barely 60 miles from the Bulgarian frontier.

In the far east, a Japanese spokesman said negotiators from Thailand and French Indo-China had submitted to their governments a new, modified proposal by Japan for settlement of their frontier dispute.

Japanese sources at Vichy said the French ministers had accepted the proposal, except for a few minor details. It was said to make territorial concessions to Thailand, but not as large as the big slices of Cambodia and Laos originally demanded. The Japanese spokesman said Japan would press for an agreement before Friday, when the present armistice in the border fighting expires.

Domei, Japanese news agency, said Japan's Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka and French Ambassador Charles Arsene Henry had "failed to reach complete agreement of views," but would meet again soon, probably tomorrow.

In the British-German air struggle, RAF raiders reported setting great fires at Cologne, in the industrial Rhineland; and other RAF night bombers jabbed at Nazi invasion ports at Brest, Ostend and Boulogne as well as German airdromes in occupied France.

Hitler's high command acknowledged that the RAF dropped explosives "and a large number of incendiaries at several places in western Germany, killing and injuring some civilians and damaging houses.

In the African war, both the German and Italian high commands asserted that German troops had defeated British mechanized forces in a second skirmish in the Libyan desert.

These other developments merged from the war fronts:

The British admiralty said allied merchant shipping losses for the week ended Feb. 23-24 totaled 14 ships of 60,868 tons.

British headquarters in Cairo announced capture of an additional 1,000 Italians in Ethiopia on March 1.

The house of commons in London was told that about 140,000 Italians had been made prisoners of war in Africa.

The daily German war bulletin said a combat plane sank a 3,000-ton ship off England, damaged another, and that other bombers sank an 8,000-ton merchant ship west of the Hebrides.

Axis aircraft bombed the Suez canal area without material damage, the British in Cairo said.

Attack Bombers As They Come Home

LONDON—(U.P.)—British fighting planes waited over German airports last night and attacked German bombers returning from raids on Britain, destroying one and damaging another, the air ministry said today.

The "offensive patrol" of enemy airdromes was a new development in night fighting.

Claim 10,000 Taken In Somaliland Drive

NAIROBI, Kenya Colony—(U.P.)—Official communiques reported today that a two-pronged drive from Italian Somaliland is approaching the Ethiopian frontier and that nearly 10,000 prisoners have been captured in the fast moving Somaliland campaign.

(Middle east headquarters at Cairo said that "another thousand" prisoners were captured March 1 in British operations in Somaliland as the drive neared the southeast frontiers of Ethiopia.)

British forces moving north towards the southeastern corner of Ethiopia have reached a point only 60 miles from the Ethiopian frontier at Bulo Burti while another column at Iscia Baidoa is only about 100 miles from the frontier.

SENATORS STILL REMAIN AT ODDS

Welfare Measure In Debate Shows Jameson, Rogers Lack Harmony.

M. Herbert immediately ordered that the bill be voted upon.

"This bill doesn't go far enough," Jameson said. He added that he had made an "investigation" and said opposition to including the pension division in the reorganization was caused by fear "of too much criticism."

"I also feel that the parole board should be revamped," he said. "I think that the director of welfare and his assistants know more about the parole system than anyone else in the state.

"The criticism of the parole board has been a re-hashing of the original trial of the prisoner."

Paroles, he said, should be based on the condition of the prisoner at the time when the crime was committed, his prison record and whether he could get a job upon release to support dependents.

"I think that the welfare department could more satisfactorily do that than the parole board," Jameson said.

Rep. H. L. Mason, D., Wyandot, has introduced a resolution in the house calling for an investigation of the pardon and parole commission.

ter laboratory at Wright Field."

The department added that the strike had been called as a result of the resumption of work by the Penner Installation corporation of New York City under its $36,800 contract for installing electrical equipment in one building at the field.

The AFL Building Trades council in Dayton, O., called a previous walkout, the department said, because of a past dispute between the AFL and the Penner corporation and also because the five employes of the Penner corporation were members of a CIO union.

The AFL members returned to work following the initial walkout, the statement continued, after the Penner corporation had been told to suspend operations temporarily. Subsequent efforts to compose the differences between the AFL and the Penner corporation failed.

"In view of the fact that the Penner corporation has a valid contract for the performance of work on this project," the department concluded, "and in view of the urgent necessity for its immediate accomplishment, the war department had no alternative but to instruct the Penner corporation to resume work."

RAPS 'POISON' OF OPPOSITION

Early Links Attacks on U. S. Defense Effort With Aid Bill Opponents.

present chiefs of the defense commission and office for production management.

It is perfectly natural, Early said, that when the British aid bill passes, Mr. Roosevelt will act with an advisory group of his cabinet.

There is nothing new in that, the secretary added, as Mr. Roosevelt has been doing so right along and will continue to do so.

"What I suspect some people are doing today is to attempt to confuse, and to make trouble for the government. I think a good many efforts to confuse and mystify and inject poison into the defense setup are now going on.

"It's probably related to the opposition of the lease-lend bill," Early said.

Administration leaders, striving to hasten final action on the British aid bill, were reported to be giving serious consideration to an amendment "guarantee" that neither the army nor navy would be utilized in the delivery of war supplies to Great Britain.

The amendment, sponsored by Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo.), apparently was drafted to satisfy demands made for a prohibition against the use of naval vessels or troops, thus eliminate at least one obstacle to speedy enactment of the measure.

O'Mahoney, it was learned, has talked with Secretary Hull, Vice President Wallace and members of the senate leadership regarding his amendment, which would provide that defense articles "shall not be delivered outside the Western Hemisphere by the land or naval forces of the United States without the consent of congress."

The proposal generally was regarded as a compromise for the amendment offered by Senator Ellender (D-La.), which states that nothing in the lease-lend bill can be interpreted as giving the president any additional authority to send troops out of this hemisphere.

The favorable reception given the O'Mahoney amendment supplied additional evidence that White House lieutenants were concentrating all efforts on obtaining a final roll call by Saturday, despite opposition forecasts that this timetable is too optimistic.

The United States had 37,336,890 dwelling units at the time of the 1940 census.

A GENERAL MOTORS MASTERPIECE

WHY ARE SO MANY former owners of low-priced cars now driving new "Torpedoes"? Simply this—Pontiac is priced so close to the lowest that the difference is scarcely noticeable. And the scores of advantages Pontiac provides more than offset its slight extra cost.

For example, Pontiac gives you the ultra-modern beauty of "Torpedo"-styled Fisher Body. Pontiac gives you the matchless comfort of the "Triple-Cushioned Ride" . . . and the assurance of more trouble-free performance provided by Exclusive Lifetime Oil Cleaner.

Why not take your present car to your Pontiac dealer today? In all probability, it will cover the down payment on a new Pontiac. The balance can be spread over monthly terms to fit your convenience.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, MARCH 4, 1941.

Democracies suffer from minorities who think they have a divine right to rule.

"The majority rules," of course—but a senate minority can delay the process for quite awhile.

Some will recall that this date was long the traditional inauguration day in Washington—but it's just as well to get such things out of the way as soon as possible after the first of the year.

While Guardsmen are Away

LEGISLATORS are considering two proposals to provide substitute protection, in the event of need, during the absence of national guardsmen from the state.

Either home guard units, organized and subject to call in each community, or an increase in the personnel and authority of the state highway patrol, seems essential to public safety.

In England, under war conditions, elaborate home guard organizations have been set up, with assignment of definite duties to all citizens, as a means of protecting lives and property during air raids or an anticipated invasion attempt.

In Ohio, while there is no apparent requirement for such widespread precautions, there is always danger of some form of disaster or disorder with which it would be impossible for civil authorities to cope. It was at such times that dependence was placed on the national guard, which was subject to call anywhere in the state.

While there has been a registration of World war veterans, with a view to learning the extent to which these men with military training may be available for emergency service, it is not assumed that this group plans to serve in lieu of a home guard or that these veterans are subject to call for duties ordinarily performed by the national guard.

The authority of the state highway patrol has thus far been limited to enforcement of traffic regulations and it is now proposed to increase the number of patrolmen and give them full police powers.

There has been some indication of opposition by organized labor to enlargement of the highway patrol, or extending the police powers of patrolmen, but it is quite unlikely that labor leaders would care to have this construed as a desire to hamper law enforcement or prevent the suppression of disorderly conduct in any community.

The state highway patrol has proved its value in traffic law enforcement and its enlargement, with grant of full police powers, seems the logical way to meet the present situation.

Considering Probabilities

SENATOR NORRIS of Nebraska, most venerable of the elder statesmen, and a lifetime independent and pacifist, says this of the leading issue at Washington today:

"I have been criticized by many honest, well-meaning people, who tell me that I have reversed myself since the World war. I have wondered during the long hours of the night on many occasions whether they were right.

"I hate war as deeply as I did in the days of the first World war. It has no redeeming feature. It is a relic of barbarism, and in a peaceful, liberty-loving world it has no place, except as a means of self-defense.

"If we pass the lease-lend bill, the probabilities are that England will win; that Hitler will fall; and that the great machine built up by him will fall apart and disappear. If war comes to us, it will be because Hitler and his dictator brothers want it to come."

Possible—But Not Probable

NEW automobile license plates were issued to 332 motorists on the opening day of the sale, and if the average would run slightly above this number each day during the next three weeks all applicants could be served promptly and there would be no last-minute rush—such as always has been encountered heretofore.

Except for persons in financial straits which make it necessary to await the final payday in March before getting license plates, there is no apparent good reason for waiting until the last day or two, as is customarily done by several thousand motorists in Mansfield and vicinity.

Why wouldn't it be a good idea to remember to get YOUR plates some day this week?

Ladders as Accident Cause

TWO PER CENT of all industrial accidents in Illinois in 1939, involving more than seven days' disability apiece, were ladder accidents. They caused the loss of 68,783 days of work and required compensation payments of $219,343. There were four fatalities.

That is part of the ladder record of a single state. It does not cover falls from ladders outside of industry.

According to the state health department, most of the accidents could have been avoided by practising a few simple safety rules. A ladder should always be inspected before it is used. A defective ladder should be removed, plainly marked and not used until it has been properly repaired. Ladders should be carefully placed, not too straight up and down and not too sloping. And they should be firmly fixed at both ends.

The prevention of ladder accidents is not difficult or complicated, but it sometimes seems as if people would rather be hurt than be careful.

Better Way To Sell Timber

THE forestry department at the University of Illinois is urging small farmers of the state to market their timber co-operatively. The total timber in Illinois woodlands is important, but the individual farmer, with a small grove or two, has a hard time selling any of it profitably. He not only has very little to sell at any one time, but he doesn't know much about the value of different logs or when and where they could best be marketed. The worst thing he could do would be to sell off all of his trees at once for a lump sum.

If a group of farmers get together, however, the cost of cutting and marketing will be lowered and each will receive his own share of the total receipts. This procedure would maintain a small but regular crop of timber to be harvested every few years.

A button used by George Washington is priced at $168.50 —and a purchaser at that price may be suspected of being minus some of his.

Listen World!

Always an England!

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

THAT SONG, "There'll Always Be an England," marches with me these days. Against the dark vistas of ruined London streets it streams like a bright cavalcade of flaming torches, flaring banners and shining, undaunted faces.

Nor does that cavalcade surge only against the wreckage of Britain. It raises as gallantly against the twilight of poor, troubled France . . . the misery of the Low Countries . . . the shame and rage of Norway.

For that song is true! It is as true of every shackled national who still dares to dream and rebel and hope. The true dreams, the clean rebellions, never die . . . can never be conquered. For they are hidden far beyond the reach of guns or bombs or vicious propaganda. They are hidden in the human heart. They are part of the soul's horizon. They are immortal. And as long as one man dares to believe in the truth and courage and love of decency which inspired his country.

"There will always be an England"—

"There will always be a France—

And a Belgium—and a Holland—

And a Greece—and a Norway—

And a Finland—and a Czechoslovakia.

AND, GOLD HELPING US, AN AMERICA!

I wonder how many of us remember this secret today, or ever really learned it. We're seeing "National Defense" in terms of ships and submarines, bombs and bullets, planes and tanks. We're reckoning our own security in terms of jobs, wages and bank balances. All of which makes sense, as far as it goes. But don't kid yourself . . . it doesn't go far enough to save America or defend your own future, freedom and prosperity.

THE ONLY THING THAT CAN SAVE AMERICA . . . OR ENGLAND, NORWAY OR THE LOWLANDS . . . IS THE DREAM THEIR CHILDREN CARRY IN THEIR HEARTS

For great nations are not built by bullets or bullion. They are built on human hunger . . . human faith.

WE ARE WHAT WE HOPE FOR . . . AND FIGHT FOR . . . AND BELIEVE IN. AND AS LONG AS THAT HOPE AND FAITH AND FIGHT ARE LIVING THINGS, NOBODY CAN DEFEAT US.

There'll always be an England."

That doesn't mean that England has always been blameless or wise or even kind. But it does mean that a certain kind of people have harbored a dream and a pride in their hearts and backed it with all they had. And as long as any individual or any nation does that, they cannot be destroyed.

There'll always be an England."

That was only a phrase once, and not a very reliable phrase in the years after the war, when England let herself drift and dissipate and abandoned herself to hate and self pity. But it is a living phrase today, when Englishmen and Englishwomen have put away child's play and resentment and have armored themselves with courage, determination and loyalty.

Notice to Herr Hitler:

You cannot lick a nation of people who are defending their own dream. Therein lies for fatal misjudgment. You have imposed your dream on the German people . . . but they are meeting a people who dream of their own free will. Which, believe me, trick mustache, is something else again.

"There'll always be an England" . . . but will there always be an America? Sometimes I wonder. How far does our dream stretch beyond our private profit and safety? How deeply do we love what America means? How strongly do we desire liberty and equality? How much will we voluntarily sacrifice to defend the rights our fathers bought us with their lives?

Sometimes I wonder. Always I hope. But I still have got to be shown.

Health And Diet

Action of Some Newer Vitamins.

—By DR. CLENDENING

VITAMIN E is one of the newer vitamins and has proved of very considerable interest. It is fat-soluble and is found mostly in fatty parts of vegetables.

It was first known as the reproductive vitamin. If animal mothers are deprived of this vitamin in their diet, they are unable to bear living young. When Vitamin E is restored to the diet their reproductive functions are normal.

Chemically it contains several factors which are known as Alpha, Beta and Gamma Tecapherol, and it can be obtained in pure form under those names.

A sensational use for the vitamin has recently been found by Dr. Herbert Evans at the University of California. He experimented by giving animal mothers just enough of the vitamin to allow them to produce a living litter. He then deprived the mother of E entirely so that the animals got none in the milk and then he took it away from their diet.

He thought that this might have some effect upon reproduction but, to his astonishment, what actually happened was that the animals became paralyzed. When Vitamin E is restored to the diet, the paralysis disappears. It has, therefore, been used in human medicine, given to people with various forms of paralysis. In one form at least it has proved of spectacular benefit, the cases being completely restored to health.

Vitamin H.

Vitamin H is another new vitamin, but up to the present time no human conditions have been found to result from deficiency. It is necessary for certain animals. For instance, trout cannot be kept alive unless Vitamin H is added to the water of the stream.

Vitamin K is another new vitamin and is very useful. Its use has, in fact, solved one of the great problems of surgery — the tendency to hemorrhage in jaundice. Vitamin K is chemically of a fatty nature and it is known that fats do not absorb in the intestine until they are united with bile.

In cases of obstructive jaundice, therefore, where no bile is in the intestine, K is not digested and is not absorbed and, therefore, there is a tendency to spontaneous hemorrhage in this condition. If the jaundice is due to gallstones it makes the operation quite hazardous.

It is, therefore, a great boon to surgeons to have Vitamin K in these conditions and it is now given routinely to patients with jaundice, especially if they are being prepared for operation.

INDIANS celebrated their festival days with great pomp and ceremony. Their principal festival was the green corn dance, lasting 12 days in August.

The center of festivities was the Longhouse, around which visiting tribesmen, with their families, pitched their wigwams. Heads of animals killed for sacrifice were suspended over the Longhouse on a large white pole.

Squaws prepared the new corn and provisions for the feast. The warriors first took some of the new corn, rubbed it between their hands, then on their face and chest and the feast began after the chief thanked the great spirit for the return of the harvest season.

Caleb Atwater, the historian, wrote: "The quantity of provisions collected was immense, every one bringing according to his ability. The whole was cast into a pile and distributed among the multitude."

South American Plane Business Sought By Britain, Despite War

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Despite the army's attempted crack-down on plane manufacturers to quit turning out commercial craft, it is now definitely confirmed that the British are still selling a few commercial planes to South America.

This is viewed with mixed feelings in administration circles: embarrassment because Roosevelt has urged such speed in production for Britain: approval because of the confidence-in-Britain reaction which plane sales are bound to create in Latin America.

This is what the Germans boasted they could do last year, though they were unable to deliver their planes because of the blockade.

At any rate, whether the United States likes it or not, General Aircraft, a British company, recently sent a Cygnet plane to Brazil as a display model to entice orders. The company's agent reported from Rio de Janeiro, "The prospect for orders for your 'planes is encouraging, and I must say that the Cygnet is very captivating. . . . I think you may look forward to receiving orders for at least four, possibly more, Cygnets very soon in Rio alone. . . .

"People are astounded that it has been possible for England to export planes in a time like the present."

Affects U. S. Airlines.

AERONAUTICS, a British publication, stated in December that the British Airways had received delivery of the first of eight de Havilland Flamingos, "to be used abroad on services already in existence and on new routes that have been planned in various parts of the Empire." The Flamingo is a large transport plane comparable to the Douglas and Lockheed.

The policy of the British is that such sales keep commercial lines open and effectively create the impression that Britain can not only hold off the invader but also do business as usual.

Because of this, U. S. war department officials are veering to the British view that it is important to keep commercial airways open and expanding. So the curtailment of U. S. commercial airplane production may not go into effect after all.

East Indies Oil.

HOW imminent is the danger of Japanese attack in the Dutch East Indies can be gauged by the fact that the Dutch Shell Oil company already has taken steps to keep its valuable property from falling into Japanese hands.

Dutch Shell has vast interests in the Indies, including oil wells scattered through Borneo and Sumatra and a large oil refinery on the coast of Borneo.

All its properties, as well as routes leading to them, have been secretly planted with "sleeper" mines, which can be detonated at a moment's notice if the Japanese set foot on the island. In that case millions of dollars worth of holding will be blown up or fired.

The company also has built shelters for its employes, invisible from the air in the dense jungles of Borneo, where huge quantities of food, medicine and other necessities have been cached. Even new wells have been dug to provide water during the emergency.

White House Rooster.

SECRETARY of Agriculture Claude Wickard has a lot of headaches, but the one which bothered him most recently was delivering a Plymouth Rock rooster in his official limousine to the White House.

White House secretary General "Pa" Watson who has a farm down the river near Mount Vernon, asked the secretary of agriculture where he could get a rooster for his Plymouth Rock pullets. Wickard said he would take care of it.

That was a rash promise. He called in a few experts, asked them to find a rooster for the White House. But nothing happened. As experts will, they passed the buck. On his next White House call, Wickard encountered an impatient Watson. "How about my rooster?" he said.

So Wickard went out to the experimental farm at Beltsville, Md., on a personal rooster-hunt. But the government farm has just switched types, had no Plymouth Rocks. Then Wickard began negotiations between the farm and the University of Maryland, to arrange a rooster-swap without violating the law. The delay got to be a joke, and even the president kidded his secretary of agriculture about his inability to find a rooster.

Finally Wickard got the rooster, closeted it in the anteroom of his office while he received a caller. The caller overstayed his time. Suddenly the rooster emitted a screeching "Cock-a-doodle-do!", and the visitor, accusing Wickard of planting the device to get rid of callers, left in a huff.

Wickard put on his hat in a hurry, took the rooster under his arm and called for his limousine. In person he delivered the bird at the White House, breathed a sigh of relief.

A few days later, when he called again, "Pa" Watson shook his hand warmly and said:

"That rooster of yours is wonderful, Claude; in fact, I've bought some more pullets for him. And I've named him. Do you know what? I call him 'Claude'."

No More Hard Tack.

HARD TACK, that celebrated butt of douboy jibes, will be largely eliminated from army field rations if Donald M. Nelson, energetic coordinator of defense purchases, has his way.

Nelson has worked out a novel scheme to make U. S. army field rations the best in the world. The most important feature of this, at least from a soldier's viewpoint, deals with the hated hard tack.

The defense purchasing chief and his aides have discovered a substitute — canned, irradiated bread. Large quantities of this have been ordered for the army. Hermetically sealed in small tins, suitable for carrying in a knapsack, the bread will remain fresh indefinitely.

In addition, every soldier in the field will carry a second tin of a meat and vegetable mixture containing all the essential vitamins. The two cans together will give him a balanced diet away from camp.

"No other army in the world will be as well and as scientifically fed as ours when the new system is in full operation," predicts Nelson.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—A deceptively unattractive sight in West 48th street, just off 6th avenue, is a weather-stained table standing on the sidewalk against the facade of the Bryant book shop.

On this table is piled a rabble of books, many of them as weather-stained as the table itself. You will find old mystery thrillers, travel journals, memoirs, and many similar volumes, some second hand, others the left overs of old stock that did not sell.

But now and then one snatches a real bargain from the pile — bright, new volumes with their jackets still shiny and untouched. It is possible that these occasional finds are tossed into view as a come-on. I don't know. But I can tell you that I picked up a copy of William Faulkner's "The Unvanquished" there for just 35 cents. The volume was unsoiled. It had never been read. The list price was $2.50. "The Unvanquished" is a series of interrelated short stories about the last two years of the Civil war, when it was all over, except for the fighting and the dying.

LATER, at the Lexington, where I had supper, Lani McIntire chided me for misspelling his name in a recent story. "My daddy was Irish, not Scotch," he explained. "There are no 'y's' in McIntire—only two i's."

Lani is one of three brothers who, via Hawaiian music, have learned the way to promotion and pay. He is a composer and for years has headed his own orchestra. His older brother, Dick, operates more than 20 studios on the west coast, where the "Dick McIntire System" of steel-guitar playing is featured. Al, the youngest of the trio, is a bass player in Lani's band.

Though these boys are half-Hawaiian, and were born in the Islands, neither could play a note when they departed from Honolulu. Dick and Lani went into the navy and learned to play by sneaking off to the anchor locker, where the anchor chains are kept, to study and practice. Lani says his father left Ireland and traveled to Hawaii on an old sailing vessel. He went ashore, founded a steam laundry, and lived out his days there. Lani's mother was pure Hawaiian.

A NOTE today from Warrenton, Va., and the signature at the end was Stuart Mosby-Coleman. Here are names that the history books will repeat and the trees will whisper as long as time. Stuart Mosby-Coleman is the 74-year-old daughter of Col. John Singleton Mosby, Confederate cavalry officer in the Army of Northern Virginia. He was a resourceful and daring leader, and two years after the war, when his daughter was born, he named her after his superior and idol, Jeb Stuart. She is living in Warrenton now, in the hunt country of the Piedmont. And she has the flu, she tells me. She has sent me a gun, a .44-Colt cap-and-ball six-shooter picked up on the field after Manassass.

FOR sheer amusement, I would prefer "Claudia" to any show on Broadway . . . F. van Wyck Mason has completed his chores on the coast and has returned to the east . . . A friend of his tells me it makes him angry if you call him "Wick." It's "Wike," like Dyke . . .

Meyer Davis, who played the Butler's annual ball recently, says the most frequently requested theme was "The Italian Tuscany," an English dance which goes one step forward, three steps back . . . Elaine Basset, who wears a lieutenant's bar on her dress because she was picked as the war-poster girl, is a minister's daughter.

TODAY IN HISTORY

President Washington's second inauguration took place on March 4, 1793, and all other Presidents, except four, have been inaugurated on this day. The exceptions were made because, in their instances, March 4th fell on Sunday.

A Farmer's Diary

Prowling Dog

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

WEST from our barn is an unplowed patch that stands thick with last year's canes of goldenrod, dense bunchy blue grass and round, smooth rods of greenish swamp grass colonies. The snow is still two inches deep here, and distributed evenly. An old rail fence borders on my neighbor's pasture. Here deep drifts pile and the inland field is protected.

At twilight I walked along the icy road. The west wind stung my face, and I moved briskly. At the culvert I saw the shadowy form of a neighbor's dog and heard him swish among the grass and weeds. I feared he was on a vicious errand, from the purposeful way he ran. I knew too that he was not giving chase because of hunger, but just for the joy of hunting and killing. For a full moment I felt like spanking that fool dog, and sending him home where he should stay at night.

Then, down by a corner of the fence, I heard a thundering whir of wings, and the sharp piercing cry of a wounded, fluttering bird. The others flew over into the pasture, and lit, sleepy and much confused, in various parts of the field.

I sneaked down along the fence so close to where the dog was munching that I could hear the bones crunch between his teeth. A heavy frozen clod was all I could find to throw and I missed my aim, but he caught the hard cold import of the message that it bore and slunk off through the weeds with a portion of his victim in his mouth.

Then I waited, quietly, leaning against the deep creased rails, and peering west to where the hevy had landed. Except for the deep roaring of the wind and the high whistling notes at times, where the rails were joined, the night seemed peaceful. I shivered, but still I waited. In less than a half hour I thought I heard faint movements about the frozen grassy waste. It might have been the wind.

Then all at once, I saw a little dusky form steal silently toward the sheltering fence, south 30 feet. When I could not see it any more, I guessed it had stolen through between the rails. Then a clear, high, plaintive note pierced the quiet air. "Whi-ite!" It startled me as though I had not heard a call like that before. A wild mother's grieving voice, calling her lost children. Another moment and she called again—penetratingly and urgent. One by one I saw the shadows of smaller quail come up to the little path between the rails, until I had counted eleven. I waited long enough to hear the sleepy prattle of their lullaby that told me all was well.

Applications For Farm Loans To Be Taken This Week

Richland county farmers' applications for federal emergency crop and feed loans will be accepted by Clarence Fealty, field supervisor of the farm credit administration, at the county agent's office in the courthouse basement, it was announced today.

Fealty will be at the office from 9 to 10 a. m. Thursday to interview applicants.

Loans will be made only to farmers who need a small amount of cash to finance their 1941 crops and are unable to obtain loans from any other source.

The money must be used to buy seed, finance cultivation of crops, or for purchasing feed for livestock. The government takes a first lien on the crop or the livestock to be fed to obtain the loan.

Enforce 1740 'Blue Laws'

For the first time in a century, Delaware police enforced the state's 201-year-old Sunday blue laws under orders of Attorney General James H. Morford and—close to 600 persons were arrested for various "crimes" ranging from shoveling snow to selling newspapers. Several violators are pictured being booked at a Wilmington police station above. Morford ordered the laws enforced after the general assembly failed to pass a bill repealing the 1740 statute and to give the towns local option on enforcement.

Life Insurance in action!

BY ITS VERY NATURE, Life Insurance is an active, continuing force—a living force in the homes of millions who share its benefits.

Last year Metropolitan visited many homes in times of family crisis, for a total of over $182,000,000 was paid on account of death claims to scores of thousands of beneficiaries of Metropolitan policyholders. Dividends, matured endowments, annuity payments, disability, and health and accident claims, and other benefits paid or credited to living policyholders during the year amounted to more than $426,000,000. The total of almost $609,000,000 for payments to policyholders and beneficiaries is a record high for the Company.

Metropolitan funds, invested for the benefit of its policyholders, continued to play a part in the economic structure of the nation. These funds aided in financing Government activities, helped to keep industry humming and men in jobs, to erect public and private buildings, and assisted farmers to own their farms and to keep them in proper repair. However, the low interest rates generally prevailing, continued to have their effect on the Company's earnings and consequently on dividends to policyholders.

Moreover, through its Welfare activities, its nursing service for eligible policyholders, its research, its health and safety literature and advertising, Metropolitan again contributed to the task of bringing better health to America. The death rate of Metropolitan policyholders as a whole continued to be low, and mortality among Industrial policyholders was approximately the same as the 1939 figure, a record low for this group.

Metropolitan is a mutual life insurance company. This means that the assets of the Company are held for policyholders and their beneficiaries. The value of these assets will ultimately be paid out for their benefit . . . and for them only.

Rev. R. J. Bowen officiated at the wedding of his daughter, Lucille, and William LeRoy Baker last Saturday morning in the parsonage of the Free Methodist church at Cleveland. The ceremony was solemnized at 11 o'clock.

The bride, a former Clevelander, who has been making her home here on High street, was attired in a pink lace frock with blue accessories for the occasion. White roses and sweet peas formed her shoulder corsage.

Miss Ona Bowen of Cleveland was her sister's only attendant, and she also wore a pink dress with blue accessories and a corsage similar to the bride's. Mr. Baker, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Baker, 549 Johns avenue, chose his uncle, Earl Terman of Cleveland, to be his best man.

A buffet-luncheon was served to 40 guests at the parsonage after the ceremony, and the table was centered with a tiered wedding cake topped by a miniature bridal pair.

Mr. and Mrs. Baker now are making their home at 55 Buckley avenue. The bride attended the Cleveland public schools, while Mr. Baker attended Mansfield Senior high school. He is employed by the Humphryes Manufacturing company.

The bride, a graduate of the Bucyrus high school, has been receptionist at the Medical Arts building.

Warning to Mothers:

WORMS

CAN CAUSE TROUBLE

Learn the truth! Anybody, anywhere, can have roundworms. And they can cause great distress inside your child without your ever knowing what is wrong.

Many pale, nervous, underweight children have bowel worms. Other innocent-looking warning signs are uneasy stomach, fidgeting, itchy seat, nose-picking.

Don't take chances with roundworms! Get Jayne's Vermifuge today! It is America's best known proprietary worm medicine — used by millions, for over a century. Jayne's expels stubborn roundworms, yet acts gently. If there are no worms, it works just as a mild laxative. Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.

Winter Into Spring Style

At the close of the meeting, a buffet-luncheon was served from a table centered with a bouquet of spring flowers in the sorority colors, red and yellow. Tall white tapers in branched candelabra lighted the arrangement. Mrs. Sutton presided at the table.
